This printable comparative worksheet helps students to learn and practice comparative adjectives and comparative sentences. Give each student a copy of a two-page worksheet. Students start by classifying adjectives and writing them in their comparative form. Next, students complete sentences with a comparative form of adjective +. Students then proceed to rearrange words to create comparative sentences. Finally, students perform a multi-choice exercise where they choose the correct answer and complete the comparative sentences. In this free comparative game, students combine nouns together by creating comparative sentences. Each pair of students give a set of noun cards. The students shuffled the cards and dealt with them equally. A student goes first and puts face on one of their noun cards on the table. Students then take turns to put down a noun card and make a comparative sentence with, linking together two nouns, such as 'a car is faster than a bus'. 'A bus is bigger than an elephant', etc. A card can be put down either before or after the card or card chain on the table, similar to dominoes. Every time a student puts down a card they should use a different comparative adjective. If a student makes a grammatical mistake or can't think of a way to link two noun cards together, they miss a twist. It continues back and forth with students linking nouns together with different comparative adjectives. The first student to get rid of all his cards wins the game. When students have finished, couples write out comparative sentences they created. The students then read their sentences in class. Here is a fun comparative game for elementary students to play in class. In activity, students find missing comparative adjectives in sentences about fun facts. Divide students into pairs (A and B). Give each student a related part of the worksheet. Both students have the same sentences, but where they have a comparative adjective in bold, their partner has a difference and vice versa. Student B begins by reading the first sentence and guessing the missing comparative adjective. Student B Comparative Adjective Seems to have three chances. If the comparative adjective of Student B is the same as what the student is in a bold on his worksheet, student B scores three marks and writes comparative adjectives in difference. If the estimate is wrong, Student B tries again for two points and then for a point. Again, this student seems to have a turn to find the missing comparative adjective in the second sentence and so on. Student wins with the most points at the end of the game. This free comparative adjective game is useful for comparative practice or review. Divide the students into three-four teams. Give each team a pen and paper to write. Write an example noun on the board, such as piano. Then, write the following item on the board: 1. Something bigger than the piano. 2. Something smaller than piano. 3. An action that goes with the piano. 4. A word that comes first in the dictionary than the piano. 5. A long word starting with the same letter. 6. A short word starting with the same letter. 7. An adjective to describe a piano. 8. Unlike that adjective. Eling an example answer for each item. Next, write a new noun on the board. Teams then race to write answers for the new word on board. When a team has completed all the items, check their answers. If the answers are appropriate, the teams score a score. The game continues with a different noun being used every round. The team wins with the most points at the end of the game. Victory.
